and directed to the fountain of Living Waters." And I do account it one of the greatest Mercies that I have received from a merciful Saviour, who came to seek and to save that which was lost, "Had I was induced to relinquish my situation in the Country which on account of the nature of my connections would have been very unseasonable for an undecided Christian, <sup>accordingly</sup> After the service at Bunting Chapel was over, after I had reflected on my want of a situation, and the state of my mind as to spiritual things; and saw, or thought I saw the probable means of my recovery before my eyes, I resolved in dependence upon the blessing of Providence to remove to London. With this view I left my Hops unsold, I returned home upon the Monday following and sold my little property; I came to Town in January, and fixed my residence near to those means of grace, which I trusted would lead me to the hope of glory. The 227th and 235th Psalms in your Collection as subjects for Devotion were peculiarly interesting to my feelings as soon as I first heard them sung.
