very rich and fertile, and the Plains level, free from Timber and Underwood and extended further than the Eye could reach, a River running through the middle of the Plains, Himself and the Missionary with him, should not have hesitated to have taken their Residence amongst them, any more than amongst the Natives of Otahiti. The Natives were very kind and friendly to them during the time they staid there, They found two Europeans there, who had staid with the Natives two years and gave a very good account of them, with being kind and peaceable, one of the Europeans came away in the Royal Adm. but the other did not.
No person belonging to the Royal Adm. or the other vessel received any injury from the Natives tho they were dispersed in different parts cutting Timber
