But we are too few in number to remove them yet, the Natives would take an advantage of us. I am sorry to inform you that Suaterwa was taken very ill before the vessel left us and a few days after she sailed he died, and two days after his death his wife suspended herself upon a tree and they were buried together, which seemed a very mysterious providence to us, and brought to our remembrance that the judgments of the Lord are a great deep and his ways past finding out, yet we trust the Spirit of the Lord is with us directing us aright. We have had large parties of Natives around us from distant parts of the Country but they have done no further injury than pilfering our property - and I believe I have suffered the most on that account my Tools being the greatest temptation and the most exposed - One day about two months ago when I was drawing up Timber upon the Beach and hauling upon a rope amongst a large party of Natives, that by some means or other my Watch
