to you, yet it will be better to have it done, than to quarrel about trifles here. If you have not already sent out an investment, I shall be glad if you will send for my use a case or two of Port Wine and charge the same to my account.
It will be very useful here in the winter. Mrs Readall is very weak and unequal without support to the work she has to do. You can send my articles in Iron bound Casks directed to the care of Mr Cooper, or Mr Mersden. If my name is put upon the Cask Mr Mersden will not permit it to be opened at Port Jackson.

You will be pleased not to forget to order the three wigs I have before mentioned. The Peruke maker will be careful to make them large enough. My head is 21 inches in circumference. From the forehead to the back of the neck is fifteen inches.

I do not intend to draw upon Mr Mersden
