

I have written to you respecting my servant
 Richard Stockwell, and I believe Mr Menden will also write home in his behalf. He and Walter Hall the Blacksmith work hard every day and behave very well. I should be glad if any thing could be done for them.
 I just mention them to you as I know you will be ready to use your influence if you can do it with propriety. Richard Stockwell was tried at Bristol March 30. 1812 and Walter Hall was tried at Dublin in January 1812.

Mr Nicholas a Gentleman who came out as a passenger with me in the Earl Spencer and accompanied Mr Menden to New Zealand will I expect shortly return to England. If he does you will obtain a variety of information from him respecting New Zealand.

Altho' the spot on which I reside is
