entirely unsuitable for the purposes of cultivation, and I cannot do much of course towards the support of my family, yet I think it my duty to settle them on account of the number of children that are about me. Any settlers who may come out with a view of ultimately making themselves independent of the Society ought to be encouraged to go over to Mr Hale, or to establish themselves in some other convenient place. Company is very desirable, but while I feel myself safe I am content.

Altho' Mr Hale is entirely alone yet I am told the People of Warrakkee District are very kind to him and do not attempt to take any thing from him. Warrakkee's son and another chief assist him continually with their good offices.

We are very glad at all times to see the return of the Active, but should
