

said in their broken English. See the Bay of Islands" See the Bay of Islands" The Captain was not at a loss to comprehend their meaning, nor indeed was I at all displeas'd at their conduct particularly as I knew it was not their intention to hurt him. I requested them to say no more until Divine Service was over, as it was then time to assemble to worship God. They attended to my request immediately as many as could, came into my house, and the remainder stood round the Door. When Prayers were over, I told them ~~that~~ Captain Parker, and the other Captains of the Whalers had been told, that their late Chief Tippahsee was the principal singler in the Destruction of the Boyde, and Ship's Company. That he had been told lies. and the people of Tippahsee were good men Ja Tippahsee was a good man, and that Captain Parker never wished to make peace with them. He would not hurt them any more. The Natives addressing themselves to Captain Parker ^{by} their speaker for one of them could speak English tolerably well, told him how many Men, women and Children had been killed. How many ~~had~~ balls pass'd thro' their legs, arms, &c. and that Tippahsee had seven Balls which pass'd thro' his carmen one of which wounded him but not mortally, and that