

cold and had not taken care of himself. The natives are not in the least aware of the real causes of their diseases. They call every thing ^{poison} Atua that gives them pain. The deluded man said Atua was within him eating his vitals. He seemed not at all sensible of the evil consequences of drinking cold water when in a raging fever. I gave ^{him} such-things to take as I thought most suitable.

Friday, 21st I visited a Man ^{named Typhimode} who I was informed was near the point of death. He was surrounded and attended by two priests and some other friends who notwithstanding ^{the taboo} let me see him. He appeared to be very much alarmed under the apprehension that the Deity God was within him and that he would soon die. I endeavoured to quiet his fears as well as I was able. By ~~talking~~ ^{talk} him ~~in my imperfect manner,~~ I proved or attempted to prove the ^{gross} mistake he was under with respect to the Deity being within him. I told him that all men had offended the Great Atua, and he had said that all men must die.
 I then told him that ~~the~~ all men died yet the Great
