Dear Sir

In a Letter to Mr Kendall, dated the 5th being much pressed for time, I requested him to read to you what I wrote to him. The Ship, I find, is delayed; and I, therefore take the opportunity of writing a few lines to you.

We were much grieved to receive from you an account of such a calamity as that which had befallen you when your last was written, of the 15th of Jan'y. We were thankful to hear that Mrs Hall was recovering, and trust that she is long since quite well. Mr. Nicholas who has just been with me, tells me that poor Quattera said mischief would follow if you exposed yourselves to his Countrymen in those quarters.

I know not how you will be situated when this reaches you; but I pray that God may give you all grace to live together in mutual forbearance and love. A great field is before you. You have been placed in that scene of labour at a very serious charge. You have opportunities for glorifying your Heavenly Master, afforded to few. Your need of Grace, indeed, is great and peculiar: but "My Grace is sufficient for thee" should lead you to wrestle
