in the Gazette", That not having time to read it, he only noticed the first and the last parts thereof which related to the Philanthropic Society question.

69
His Excellency the Governor states in the Government and general orders issued upon the occasion "his regret that the said Letter should inadvertently, from the great pressure of Government business in the Secretary's Office, have got admission into the Gazette" It must be inferred, that his Excellency the Governor was, at this time, ignorant that his Secretary had written the Letter "Philo Free" and ordered it to be published in the Sydney Gazette otherwise he never would have made this public apology for its insertion upon false grounds — Yet notwithstanding the apology published in the Government and general orders, and Mr. Secretary Campbell's evasion, as stated in his Letter to the Judge Advocate, it has been clearly proved, my Lord, before the Supreme Court, that the pressure of public business was not so great as to prevent Mr. Secretary Campbell even from writing the whole of the Letter "Philo Free" upon that day, and taking it personally to the printing Office — He could not have written the Letter on that day, and be ignorant of its contents, as he pretended, nor could he have subscribed his official signature, to the Government and General Orders, without knowing at that very time, that the Orders were incorrect, and that the Supreme Magistrate of this Colony was putting his official signature to a public document, which might at a future day be proved to be incorrect, and by which the honour of the Executive Government might be injured in the public opinion.

I shall not trouble your Lordship any further
