

Present there must be a vessel. The outfits here are very heavy, every kind of labor being high as well as Articles, and the Post Duties, fees &c. amount to a very considerable sum - Mr. Permode will state to you what arrangements I have made with him relative to the oil which the Station may procure on her intended voyage -

I have also mentioned to Mr. Permode that I think many Articles might be collected in England for the natives of New Zealand, which would be of infinite importance to them, and would forward the benevolent views of the Society, where money could not be got - Mr. Permode might assist in this plan in Liverpool Should you approve of it - I beg therefore that you will have a little conversation
