

amidst difficulties and Privations you will never be truly comfortable in the work. A Missionary must be prepared to meet every difficulty, to submit to every Privation, and to bear his Cross wherever his duty calls - If you wish to continue any longer in the Mission you must make up your mind to join the Mission the first opportunity, and while you remain here you must think of doing something or other if you can to lessen the Expenses to the Society - I feel confident the Society will not be very well satisfied with me as their Agent that I have not urged you more strongly to proceed to your work - I think you must be fully persuaded, that something should be done to satisfy the mind of the Committee, that you are acting according to your Engagements with the Society - I doubt not after
