

he hopes still to carry his point, and has sent a vessel down to Tahiti with this view - should he succeed, I apprehend the mission in the Society Islands will be greatly injured, tho' at present in the most prosperous state - should Cayer come to London, as a delegate from this country, appointed by the convicts or those who have been convicts I do most sincerely hope he will meet with that reception from the religious world his conduct has so justly merited.
The Documents I forwarded to Mr. Hankey and to Lord Bathurst will shew the intentions he has had in view - I am assured he will meet with the
