

it has caused a schism among the few that should be united. It however proves that human nature, even when we hope it is sanctified, is too much governed by passion, and prejudice; when we ought to watch over our very thoughts with a godly jealousy.

A wound is not pleasing from an enemy; But to suffer in the house of our friends is very painful.

Hoping, and praying, that the Lord the Spirit will give you wisdom to direct you in all your undertakings in the Christian cause and support you in every conflict to which you may be called. I remain

Rev<sup>d</sup> and Dear Sir

Yours very affectionately

Richard Hill