

these concerns should be put into the hands of my Enemies, and the Enemies to the Cause - Captain Irvine told me he would write to the Society respecting the Affairs of the mission - what statements he will make I cannot tell - He perhaps will give way to his private feelings, as he was disappointed in not getting copies of the Society's Accounts - I borrowed Cap^l Irvine I had for my own satisfaction, laid the Society's Accounts before the Honourable Comm^{rs} of Enquiry, and with which he was perfectly satisfied - I considered the Com^{rs} an official public character; and saw no impropriety in giving him every information - but the care was different with private individuals who could have nothing to do with these concerns - Things will now take a turn, as Sir M^{rs} Brisbane has arrived - He will not exert his powerful influence to annoy private individuals in a thousand ways, as hath been done - I must wait till I learn what
