

are they cannot be happy. Mrs. Butler repeatedly told me she never wished to come - and on that Ground she has Cause to complain, and Demands commiseration - her Difficulties would be much lighter if her mind was at ease - I never charged Mrs. Butler with neglect of Duty - I know she is a woman that cannot be idle and has spared every <sup>She allows Mr. Butler to work very hard.</sup> ~~hour~~ <sup>Wonderful</sup> ~~hour~~ I have never accused you of neglect of labour, but I have always said you have laboured hard - As for me charging you with neglect of Duty, I do not understand exactly what you mean. The Term Duty is used in two general ways - If you had mentioned to what part of your Conduct you applied the Term I should have known what reply to have made - As a Magistrate of the British Nation I can know nothing of you - Here I think you mistake the extent of your Authority - as you could not act even in New South Wales in that Capacity - your Magisterial Authority was merely local <sup>you is this length</sup> you abuse since you have taken upon you to traverse my Character without any just Cause; you must therefore stand prepared to justify your own! I do not see the force of this Argument - one man may accuse another, and yet the Accuser may have done no wrong - you accuse me of selling the Things which you say you wrote for - The Articles you allude to were not your Property, but the Society's - They were not committed to you, but to me as the Society's Agent - If you mean to insinuate that I derived any advantage from the Sale of these Goods, you are mistaken - you know better - and you know why I directed them to be sold - because there were no Services of the Prices of the different Articles, but only the goods were not for sale I believe, but for the profit

Mrs. Butler's account of her difficulties
 I never charged Mrs. Butler with neglect of Duty I know she is a woman that cannot be idle she allows Mr. Butler to work very hard wonderful I have never accused you of neglect of labour but I have always said you have laboured hard As for me charging you with neglect of Duty I do not understand exactly what you mean The Term Duty is used in two general ways If you had mentioned to what part of your Conduct you applied the Term I should have known what reply to have made As a Magistrate of the British Nation I can know nothing of you Here I think you mistake the extent of your Authority as you could not act even in New South Wales in that Capacity your Magisterial Authority was merely local you abuse since you have taken upon you to traverse my Character without any just Cause you must therefore stand prepared to justify your own I do not see the force of this Argument one man may accuse another and yet the Accuser may have done no wrong you accuse me of selling the Things which you say you wrote for The Articles you allude to were not your Property but the Society's They were not committed to you but to me as the Society's Agent If you mean to insinuate that I derived any advantage from the Sale of these Goods you are mistaken you know better and you know why I directed them to be sold because there were no Services of the Prices of the different Articles but only the goods were not for sale I believe but for the profit