

I am aware that most in the Mission have done wrong, exceeding wrong, and some have been guilty of great sins, at the same time you have no just cause to complain, when you consider that for years you obstinately followed your own ways, against all admonitions warning and orders of your Superiors. It appears as if you had been permitted to fall into open and scandalous sins, and to bring upon yourself heavy afflictions in order to check you from persevering in a line of conduct so revolting to every Christian feeling, and has brought such disgrace upon the Christian Name.

I am not surprized that the Society have dismissed you from their service, but I have been much surprized that they did not dismiss you long before this period, for your disobedience to their positive commands.

The Committee have exercised long and great patience and forbearance with you. I would ask, would you keep a Servant for years who would not obey your orders?

I should not have reminded you of these things, if you had spared your censures of the Society.
