

There will be no objection to him on account of his being a Deponent. The main thing for a Deponent is stealing piety, there must also be stealing ^{money} in those who become fellow helpers with the Deponents.

You will most probably hear from Mr. Pratt a month or two after receiving ^{this} as Mr. Marsden is about to write to Mr. Pratt on this subject, and will advise Mr. Pratt to write to you on the subject. In the meantime let Mr. Cobb be apprised of it, but let him not be too anxious for fear of disappointment, let him see this letter and if still disposed to come out, to hold himself in readiness, his being an illiterate character is no material objection and Mr. Marsden is acquainted with it.

Remember us very affectionately to all our friends.

Your affectionate friend
Geo. Clarke
