

received. — He continued with me at Parramatta till the Ann, whaler, belonging to the House of Alexander Birnie, of London, arrived from England: — She was bound for the Newzealand Coast, and he requested me to procure him a passage, that he might make another effort to see his country and friends.

The Captain agreed, with me, to take him on condition that he would remain on board, and do the duty of a sailor while the ship continued on the Coast. — Duaterra readily consented to go, on these terms, and took with him, some seed wheat, and tools for agricultural purposes, a second time. —

The Ann was about five months on the coast, and Duaterra was ultimately landed in safety at home, to the inexpressible joy of his relations and of himself.

During the time he remained with me, he laboured early and late, to obtain knowledge, and, particularly, to make himself acquainted with practical agriculture.

He seemed well aware of the advantages of agriculture, in a national point of view, and was a tolerable judge of the qualities of land. — He was anxious that his Country should reap the advantages, which he knew it was capable, by the cultivation of the soil, on waste lands: — and was fully convinced that the wealth and happiness of a country, depended greatly on the produce of its soil. —

On his landing from the Ann, he took with
