

Mr Hazard said to him "Nowhee you had better stay at home a day or two, till you are better." - His reply was "No Sir! I am never so happy as when at school." - Mr Hazard assures me, that he never saw him out of temper; and that on all occasions, he manifested a spirit of humility, patience, and meekness, which would be an acquisition to many who bear the name of christian.

Tho' in general, very silent, and reserved, he was always very communicative with his teacher; he seemed to have formed a great regard for him; and several times said to him, with joy sparkling in his eyes, "O Sir! I shall often think of you when thousands of miles off." - He was very remarkable, that he discovered no desire or interest, as to any public sights which attract the populace. - When informed, on the 9th of November, that the Lord Mayor of London would pass through the streets, in grand Procession attended with Men in Armour, Music, Flags &c., and that it was such a sight, as he might never see, but at this time, he could not be prevailed on to walk to Westminster to witness it.

But if invited to see a new school - an examination of children - a meeting of a Society for christian benevolence, the distribution of Bibles, or the support of
