

garment beheld how elegantly they appear on the heads of those who wore them and became seemingly impatient to possess such an ornament. - He asked her to tell her garment, she hesitated for some time; at length he laid a certain number down at her feet, - this proved a temptation she could not resist - and she instantly threw off the fine garment, and delivered it to him for his feathers. -

The Chief intended this article as a present to his wife, and he presented it to to her, on his return. - After this Nicholas accompañied me to Houpa's fortified village. it was situated upon a high hill, nearly a mile from where we then were. - It was, in many respects, similar to that already described belonging to Shunghie. - Here we found no men; - it was entirely left to the care of some women and one of Houpa's wives; - they told us the men had gone to war. - In this place there were some very fat hogs, and fine plantations of potatoes; - the women afterwards told us: they could not sell the hogs, as they belonged to the men, who had gone to the war - Houpa's wife said she had a very large one belonging to herself, which she would make me a present of, if I would stop till it could be brought in, for at that time it was out feeding. - She sent the servant to look for the hog, along with one of our people but
