

evening the vessel was searched and if any women were found - they were sent on shore (sometimes not very well pleased). - (During my stay on board the Jefferson I saw many of my old female acquaintances who laughingly said they were not now on board the active and that the Jefferson was not boarded when the evening came like the active - there was no iriata (meaning, there was no command to be off.

I replied that I was angry with the master and crew of the Jefferson, for suffering them to remain all night in the vessel and that these were all very bad men. - The women smiled, and expressed their confidence that they would not be molested. - The next day I accompanied Mr Kendall to Rangheehoo in the Jefferson's whale boat; where I found Quatena dangerously ill; this was a very distressing circumstance to me: I called to see him but the superstitions of the natives would not permit me for several days, to do so - Having at length gained admision, I found Quatena lying on his back, facing the sun which was exceeding hot, in a high fever - his tongue very foul - he complained of
