limited, I had not time to gratify my wish in this respect. On my arrival in August last, I learned from Messrs Bendall and King, that they had visited the ShuKeangha, about a fortnight before; and had found that Deaterra's information was correct. I had conversed with several Natives of New Zealand, at Parramatta, relative to the harbour, wishing to know if there was any entrance for a ship: they were all of opinion that no ship could enter,
