

in consequence of hearing that Moodeewy had been killing their pigs: Shataughee and his party went to ascertain the truth of the report.

They appeared very indignant at the conduct of Moodeewy, and threatened to punish him.

In the evening, old Warremaddoo threw off his mat, took his spear, and began to address his Tribe and the Chiefs. He made strong appeals to them, against the injustice and ingratitude of Moodeewy's conduct towards them - recited many injuries, which he and his Tribe suffered from Moodeewy, for a long period - mentioned instances of his bad conduct, at the time that his Father's bones were removed from the Ahooou Pa to their family vault - stated acts of kindness, which he had shown to Moodeewy, at different times.
