Jackson, amongst whom was the Head Chief Deho Kee. At length I promised to take with me twenty Chiefs including their sons and servants. All were now busy in preparing for their voyage, as the Bampton was expected to sail immediately, and having finally completed all my arrangements relative to the Mission, I took my leave of the Missionaries and their families, intending to return to New South Wales immediately, and for that purpose embarked on board the Bampton, with these Chiefs &c.

On Saturday the 6th the Rev. A Williams and some other persons attached to the Mission, came on board, with an intention of paying their last visit, and returned to their stations in the Evening.

The next day being the Sabbath the Capt. was determined to sail. Many of the New Zealanders in the Bay of Islands since the Sabbath day has been established amongst them are very particular in observing it. In the morning when they saw the Capt. preparing to get the ship under way, expressed their astonishment at his attempt to violate the Christian Sabbath, and remonstrated very strongly against his doing so, and entreated me to dissuade him from it. The Head-Chief was much agitated, and declared that if the Capt. sailed on that day,
