

and as thick as a broom stick. They wrought hard, but made little progress in cultivation, for want of proper Tools. When we had reached the beach, Tosi said, one of his sisters was coming, whom he had not seen since his return, and earnestly requested me to get into the canoe before she arrived, as he did not wish to have his first meeting with her there. I begged him to wait for her, as she was hastening down the Hill, and not to regard me, but I could not prevail upon him: He leaped into the canoe, and urged me to follow him. I delayed till she had reached the beach, when I stepped in; Tosi ordered the canoe to put off, but at that moment his sister sprung into the canoe, weeping aloud, and past by me. she fell on her knees grasped Tosi's knees, he saluted her, when she gave vent to her feelings in tears and loud lamentations, which she continued for about an hour: when we landed on the opposite Island, she still sat weeping for a long time. Tosi conducted himself with great propriety, he suppressed all the wild feelings of an uncultivated mind, and yet shewed all the soft and tender feelings of nature towards his sister. I could not but view his Conduct with admiration, and told him to indulge his affection for his sister without any respect to my being present. I saw he was anxious, lest the warmth of his sister's Affection, and the strong manner in which she manifested it, should overcome his manly fortitude, and cause him to imitate her example, as he had done on a former occasion, when I first visited New Zealand. When we landed we found Korra Korra, and a number of his people, who received us with much kindness. I told him I was come to set the people to clear the land at Manououra, and to set out the house which it was necessary to build for their accommodation. He received this news with much joy, and said he would accompany me in the morning, and give the necessary directions to his people, to lend their assistance. When he saw the Boes for breaking up the ground, he was much pleased. After conversing upon various subjects, we had Supper, sung an Hymn, and committed ourselves to the protection of the Angel of The Everlasting Covenant, and then lay down to rest. A number of the natives lay round about the Hut, and some within. I slept well till the day returned, being weary with walking, when I lay down. We took our breakfast, and then set off for Manououra, which lay a few Miles distant on the opposite main. On our way we came up with
