

parts of this lake <sup>the water</sup> is hot, and full of Sulphur.
 springs Shungee had his wounded bathed in these warm springs in which they lay all night. He told me he could make the water any heat he wished, as some of it was always boiling, by making little channels in the mud to carry either the hot or cold water into the baths where his people lay - He cured them also of cutaneous eruptions and other complaints After the Island was subdued, peace was established, when they returned to ~~Mercure Bay~~ <sup>Towrangha</sup> with their prisoners of War, many of whom had made their escape in the night, Shungees army, being so fatigued on their return with dragging their canoes thro the woods that they were unable to guard their prisoners of War being overpowered with sleep - Ioi was in this action and had an uncle killed named Iupo - He hunger, toil and hardship the ~~Ma~~ <sup>Ma</sup> deal and less suffer in these expeditions are very great - They are a very persevering people no privations, or hardships can prevent them from pursuing any object their minds are set upon - I was told that Shungee and Pomare in this expedition had some difference which Pomare wished to have the matter immediately settled by force of arms - Shungee objected alledging that while they were on an enemies country, they should unite their forces, and when they returned to the Bay of Islands, they could then decide their present disputes - Pomare is a very proud Man, he had not returned when I sailed - How their difference will be settled when he arrives is uncertain - I think he will be quiet -
