

In the evening I was informed that Mr Kendall was arrived at Thiddlee Thiddlee. He did not visit the Missionary Settlement but went to Shungee with whom he remained all night - a strong proof of the state of his mind, when he could prefer on the Sabbath evening the company and conversation of Savages to the Society of his countrymen in the very sight of their Homes - I suspected his intention was not good, but to prejudice and inflame Shungee's mind against myself, and all the Missionaries. Oct 26

This morning Mr Kemp sent to invite Mr Kendall to breakfast, but he declined coming. I wished Mr Kemp to do this, to soften things as well as he could, knowing the influence he had over Shungee's mind. Mr Kemp afterwards went over to Mr Kendall to request him to settle his accounts with him, as he was at Thiddlee Thiddlee, but he refused to come.

Shungee was very distant with Mr Kemp & wanted to know why I and all the Missionaries, were angry with Mr Kendall, told Mr Kemp that Mr Butler was a bad man, and should not stay at Thiddlee Thiddlee, and made many more unfavourable observations.

Mr Kendall had promised to build Shungee an House and to come and live with him at Thiddlee Thiddlee - I saw he had wrought powerfully upon Shungee's mind.

Mr Kemp invited Shungee to dine with me but he declined - at length Mr Kendall went away without calling upon me, or any of the Missionaries.

After dinner I called upon Shungee, he was rather distant we had some conversation upon indifferent things, when I returned Home - I was very much hurt to think Mr Kendall should act such an unchristian part.
