

Butter jump about much - we had to work up against the wind the distance between the two Harbours is between forty and fifty miles.
Late in the evening we arrived opposite the mouth of the Harbour of Waugoroo, but could not get in - we therefore lay off until Day

Towed in by canoes

Light - The wind was against us getting in - we got the Boat a Head and several Canoes came out and towed us into the Harbour - About twelve we came to anchor - Shortly afterwards George the Chief, and several more with him came on board - I requested George to take charge of the Vessel until I and the master returned from visiting Mr. Seigh who resided about eight miles higher up the River - The Rev. Mr. & Mrs. Turner, also accompanied us to the missionary Settlement where we found Mr. Seigh very ill - The master returned ~~late~~ in the evening to the vessel, but I remained all night with Mr. Seigh - many whom I had seen before came to visit me, and rejoiced that I had come again to see them.

As soon as I saw the State Mr. Seigh was in I recommended him to return with me to Port Jackson - He wanted more care, more comforts, and medical advice - These were not to be procured in Waugoroo.
I felt much for Mrs. Turner a young woman
