

Dore. I spent the night in ruminating upon the difficulties with which I was surrounded, while the stormy wind and rain still continued, and the raging sea to dash against the shores -

Leave the Island for the Missions Station

Boats dispatched to the wreck

Thurs. 9. At the return of Day we observed the ship still upright, but appeared to be driven higher up upon the keel - I now determined to return to Kiddlee Kiddlee in Mr. Galls boat, with Mr. & Mrs. Leigh - we had suffered two dreary and stormy days and nights under the most painful anxiety for the safety of those in the ship - we now left the Island as soon as we could for the missionary Settlement, where we arrived about 9 o'clock - our friends had not heard of the loss of the ship until our arrival, as there had been no communication between the different Settlements in consequence of the severe weather - we were very kindly received by the brethren - I took up my lodgings with Mr. Kemp, and Mr. & Mrs. Leigh with the Rev. Mr. Muller - I informed the brethren in what situation we had left the ship, and requested that every assistance might be given to land the passengers and baggage - The wreck was about 12 or 16 miles from the Settlement - Four boats were immediately sent off - Mr. Galls boat took the women and children the same evening to Kungsee hoo and two of the boats returned with part of our baggage - and we went to the
