

The scenes of slaughter and carnage at and after the battle in which Erukkee was killed were so horrid, and offensive to him, that he could not eat any thing for four days. He spoke with the greatest Abhorrence of the Carnage of this Countrymen, and said he would never go to war again - That Shunghee had solicited him to accompany him in his last Expedition against Kutuvoo, but he had refused to go - He observed the New Zealanders would never be quiet from war - that he could not live in the Country, and asked me if I would afford him any Protection if he and his Family came to Port Jackson - I promised him I would - He said, he had seen Shunghee since his return, ^{Shunghee} ^{had} ^{intended} him, that it was his Intention to ^{Intention} ^{disclosed} ^{for} ^{an} ^{other} ^{Expedition} ^{against} ^{Yerua} ^{mak} ^{the} as soon as I left N. Zealand, but he would not do it until I was gone - He asked me if I had seen Shunghee, and whether he was friendly or not - I told him I had, and that we were very friendly - He thought our difference at Port Jackson might have interrupted our Friendship; and expressed his Satisfaction that we were reconciled, observed, there was no Force in New Zealand, that could resist the People of the Islands, they were so powerful from the abundance of Arms and Ammunition which they possess, and remarked that they had such means for continual war, which occasioned such great public calamities
