

Port Jackson, they might then come when they wished to do so - He replied the Chiefs would never agree together in having a ship; for each of them would want to have the Direction - and observed, that they could not agree to allow the missionaries to live altogether every one wants them to reside with their Tribes.
Those who have not got missionaries in their District, their Hearts are sick, and they are continually craving them, He made many pointed remarks upon the Corruption of many Heeds, and on the Papans that governed them.
The New Zealanders are men of great Reflection and Observation and they try to find out the motive for every act which any man does - It is a very common description with them; that the outside of a man may be seen, but the inside cannot, and they frequently observe to me, after I have been conversing with any of their Country men, you hear them speak but you do not know what is in their Hearts! If it should ever please God to give them the Knowledge of his Grace and love, they will become a very wonderful People - They study human nature with the closest attention, and endeavour to find out every man's real Character from the whole of his Conduct - A rude and violent man is very offensive to them. Amongst themselves they live in great Peace, and Harmony, I have not seen either man or woman or boy struck by one another since I have been in the Island.

The above is from the 4th visit to N. 2.

This is in Rev. Madden's handwriting 2013

description
as to character