it was Mr. Marsden - for I have seen a good deal of that Gentle^m of his proceedings, I have formed a high Conception, both of his Talents for Business his Unaffected Piety & Worth - On my return of Neighbourhood of London therefore, the matter having been mentioned to me by some friends, more especially by Mr. Motlock, whose liberality I daily see, you well know, I was intimated a disposition to assist in carrying the plan into Execution, I consulted a few Gentlemen whom I deemed likely to be useful & authorities in such an Undertaking - I have not time to enter into particulars but it may suffice to say, that it appeared on Inquiry & after Consideration, that solid Objections might
