We do not touch at the Cape, but proceed from hence to Port Jackson - Present my respectful Compliments to the Society - I shall write to you again from Port Jackson It is my present intention for all the missionaries to go on in the Arm to New Zealand. I apprehend there will not be the smallest danger in Mr.
 Hall now going on, from the close intimacy formed between them and the Chief. It may be necessary that I mention, another circumstance, when we arrived at Rio - I directed Hall to make out a list of what Articles they would want, and I would purchase them, as I could get them along with mine, at a much lower Price - However I found Hall purchased what he thought proper without my advice or assistance, and had paid an high Price for his goods - Afterward he asked me if I would pay for them on the Societys account - I told him I certainly should not - He was at full liberty to buy what he liked with his own money, but not with the money belonging to the Society. I know that he does not want for money, neither shall they want for any other Comfort. at the same time he did not appear satisfied, and perhaps will mention it in his letter. what King has wanted I have supplied him with, because he has not those independent notions -
