what took place at New Zealand with regard to the voyage will be no Hindrance to the mission.
Mr. Kendall might establish himself here, in the best place, and form some intimate friendships with those who visit the Colony, and be acquiring the language as opportunity offered. An opportunity might offer for him to go over to visit the Island and leave his family here - he would then better judge what ought to be done - Hall & King are pretty bent upon going on whenever it appears prudent and safe. As soon as my messenger returns with an Account of the Island we shall know then better what to do - Hall & King are now no Expense to the Society - Hall is a very able man, and great steadiness & industry. His wife is a most excellent woman - King is very pious - I wish he had been married - it would have been much better, never upon any Account send a single man out.
