

and orderly People I have seen any where.
I shall endeavour to collect some well attested facts of the Treatment these People receive from our whaling Ships, if the masters do continue to act as they have done, and see if some thing cannot be done to restrain them from those Acts of Violence & Fraud of which they have been guilty. I shall write to you again when my messenger returns from Quaterra. Hall & King are now no Expense to the Society - We have paid them at different times from their leaving London has amounted to about £65. Should an opening be made for them to go forward, they then will call upon the Society for support. I supplied Quaterra with what he wanted from myself excepting a bit Saw - which was the Property of the Society.
I have no doubt, but in time much good will
