one anothers Estates in order to obtain Food for their Support. All who are acquainted with Agriculture know that Potatoes alone (and without manure) will soon exhaust the richest Soil. If the inhabitants of England were to live upon Fish and Potatoes, there would be hard fighting some times for a little Ground. A very great Chief lately named Mucā, Uncle to Quaterna, was obliged for the support of himself and Subjects to go into another Chiefs Districts to grow Potatoes, which brought on a war, in which he and many of his men were slain. They now grow a little Maize, if they acquire the Knowledge of growing wheat, Pease, Beans, Vegetables, &c. &c.
 The different Seasons will supply them with different Food, which would prove the greatest temporal Blessing to them. I shall go myself to New Zealand if Providence should open my way, at least I have the most ardent wish, should that wish ever be gratified —
