

considering him as a Savage. Not much more could be expected from him. but the account which I have heard of the dispute between him & the River Thames Chief. I think he acted with great forbearance. I will endeavour to collect the account & forward it to you. Mr Kendall I expect will make some use of what is stated and perhaps may not confine himself strictly to the letter. The Chief no doubt may be irritated. as it is what he has charged upon some of the missionaries.

Two days since Mrs W. was safely delivered of a boy. This is the second birth since we have been here. Mrs Fairbairn was confined three weeks since. When Mrs W. attended upon her and gave all requisite aid. she was so far recovered as to perform the same office for Mrs W. who is now greatly recovered. and with the infant is as well as it is possible for a person to be after so great an event. her health has been of the best. The children also and we great cause for thanksgiving and praise each succeeding day. we hence were more comfortable in our lines. May I will say happy. nothing interrupts us but the knowledge of our own unworthiness. That we may walk in the fear of the Lord is <sup>an</sup> constant desire and prayer. and to be made useful to these particularly interesting people fear has never once entered our minds. The children are constantly amongst the natives. and from the first of our coming here to the present time notwithstanding the great exposure of property at the land they know not of the loss of the value of a

W. Fairbairn